PM24/01/4 TO RECEIVE A PRE-APPLICATION PRESENTATION REGARDING EMERGING PLANS FOR A NEW CARE HOME WITHIN THE PARISH OF ILLOGAN

Mr Turner, an architect from Poynton Bradbury Wynter Cole Architects, spoke about very early plans for a new care home in Illogan on behalf of Cornwallis Care Services. The care home would be sited at The Barnyard, Illogan Churchtown, Illogan.

Initial plans were for a 33-bedroom residential nursing home and 3 close care residential units. Close care was for people who weren't quite at the stage of needing residential care, but needed more care than sheltered accommodation would offer.

There was currently a high demand for residential care home placements for people with complex needs and a shortage in the places available for them.

They had recently had planning approved in Penzance for a 55-unit site and were looking at further sites in Lostwithiel and Par.

Councillors made the following comments:

- It was noted that some of the roads on the maps provided were incorrect and needed to be updated.

Mr Turner made notes and agreed to amend the documentation for the future stages of the process.

- A verge on the boundary of the land, Parsonage Well, was currently maintained by Illogan Parish Council under a Service Level Agreement with Cornwall Council. Would this agreement be maintained?

This would have to be looked into, but it was likely the verge would not be affected by the plans and therefore would have no impact on this agreement.

- Vehicular movement in the area. The site was close to Illogan School and there were concerns about traffic issues, particularly at school drop off and collection times.

A transport consultant would be employed to confirm traffic issues and work on solutions.

- The area was known to have drainage issues with run off from the school site and land northeast of the lane. This would need careful consideration in relation to any new development in the area.

This hadn't yet been looked at in detail, but it was hoped that the drainage of the whole area could be improved as part of the development.

- Where was the funding for the project coming from?

The funding was private and mainly from Cornwallis Care. Currently 90%-95% of their services were nominated Cornwall Care places but there would be no local authority funding on Capital Expenditure.

- Was this the most appropriate place for a care home? It was tucked away with no local amenities.

Residents would tend to not be very mobile so there would be no requirement for close amenities. The greener area would likely suit the residents better than something closer to local amenities.

- What constituted a unit?

A unit in the care home would be 1 bedroom with a single bed and they would be single occupancy. Close care would either be 1 or 1 ½ bed apartments. They would either for a couple or a single person. The 1 ½ bed apartments included 1 standard sized bedroom and an undersized spare room for use by a carer. They could occasionally be 2 bedrooms, but this was rare. There would be 3 of these units.

- How would it be staffed?

It would initially be staffed like a care home. There would be no staff living on site. There could be room for expansion in the future for carers or key workers to stay short term.

- There were holiday units on site. Would these remain holiday units and how would this work alongside the care home?

The holiday units on site would initially remain as holiday units. There were no concerns about this having an impact on the care home. There was potential for them to be adapted in the future to provide more close care units.

The next step would be a pre-application to Cornwall Council planning service and then a public engagement.
