

Introduction to Illogan Parish Council

Illogan is a vibrant community with a busy and progressive Parish Council. The Council and community work tirelessly together to maintain and improve the area and all aspects of Parish life.

Illogan Parish Council are expanding and are working towards the devolution of multiple additional sites from Cornwall Council.

The Parish of Illogan is situated between the towns of Camborne and Redruth with Pool to the South and the dramatic Cornish Coast to the North. There are approximately 2,800 households in the area (nearly 4,500 electors). The Parish Council looks after an area with a population density similar to that of Camborne and Redruth. The Council is responsible for Illogan Park (including the Parish Office, changing facilities, public toilets, children's play area, open space, car parking etc), Manningham Wood and various items of street furniture.

The Council owns, manages, and maintains Illogan Park and maintains a number of areas on lease or licence including Manningham Wood, The Platt and Parsonage Well and the path leading from Manningham Wood to the St Illogan Churchyard.

The Parish has three wards - Illogan, Tehidy and Park Bottom - and includes both urban and more rural districts. The Parish encompasses Tehidy Country Park and an area of the north Cornish coast that is designated as an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. It is part of the Cornwall Council Illogan & Portreath and Pool & Tehidy electoral areas.
